

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Subscriber station IDs added to subscriber station devices, and pieces of subscriber group number information representing the same group are added to the subscriber station devices to group the subscriber station devices. A base station apparatus holds a corresponding table between subscriber station IDs and subscriber group numbers and designates broadcast data received from a subscriber station device such that a subscriber station device belonging to the same group as that of a subscriber station device of a transmission source as a destination to forward the broadcast data to a wireless area. The table can be updated by an SNMP manager device connected through a communication network WAN.